IMMENSE INTEREST IN OPENING AT TANFORAN

By J. W. MARCHBANK

On every side nowadays one topic of conversation dominates: the grand prospects for the spring period of racing at my track, Tanforan. The people of California have a full realization that I went into the breeding of thoroughbreds some years back when racing was as dead as the proverbial door nail; now it is flourishing like the green-bay tree. Naturally, I am proud of my accomplishment; if I had not followed up my venture at Heather Farm by putting on meetings at Tanforan, where would we be at present? No one can deny the sport at the course so close to Daly City was the beginning of its state-wide return.

The spring session at Tanforan will be for TWENTY-FIVE days. As all the fans know, the first day has been set for Saturday, March 7 (two weeks from tomorrow). Getaway will be on Saturday, April 11. As has been customary since the inception of racing hereabouts there will be no sport on Good Friday, which is April 10 this year.

From both the point of view of the public and the horses themselves short periods of racing are highly desirable. Long sessions are not conducive to the well-being of the pastime. That was learned years ago in California; in fact, unduly lengthened seasons were a factor in the temporary disappearance of the contests out on the oval.

In my opinion, formed after extended experience in racing in various parts of the country, TWENTY-FIVE days should be the limit for any race meeting. The form of the horses is what counts at a well conducted meeting and, as is well known, form is far from being at its best in long sessions. Going from course to course adds needed zest to the game. A runner may have become stale at one track, but shipped to another easily gets back to his winning condition.

The racing at Tanforan will be on five week days. It has been my policy for a long time to skip Monday, believing it is the sportsmanlike thing to do. Not only home folk, but tourists from far places attend our races and it is the best procedure possible to afford them an opportunity, not only on Sunday, but on a week day, to see the sights of this world-famous region. The horsemen and visitors want to do a bit of shopping, too, which is more than ordinarily pleasing to our business men.

WORK FOR CHILD WELFARE PARENT TEACHERS THEME

Seventeenth District In Commemoration Ceremonies For Founders Of Organization.

Mrs. R. D. Richards, president, Seventeenth District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, will preside at the all day meeting to be held this Friday, February 21, at Sequoia Union High School, Redwood City ,when members representing 43 units located throughout San Mateo County will assemble to renew allegiance to the Parent Teacher movement which has been and still is the pioneer in every phase of child welfare work, by observing with fitting ceremonies the memories of Alice McLellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst, who founded the organization and dedicated it to the service and guidance of children.

Some of the results of their planning that have come down through the years are: The Congress was the first to call attention to child legislation. Through its movement to regulate the employment of children in mines and factories a child labor committee came into existenec .

The examination of the pre-school child and the correction of remediable defects, so that children will start school life as near physically perfect as possible, was inaugurated by this Congress and is carried on throughout the states.

It is the first organization to provide instruction in child nurture and homemaking. The Home Education Division of the United States Bureau of Education was established at the instigation of this Congress.

The organization has taken the lead in promoting the juvenile court in this and other countries, started the movement for mothers' pensions, established the first division of child hygiene in the State Boards of Health, and is the first national movement to widen and deepen the influence of fathers and mothers through the demand for better trained parenthood and wider vision of the children's needs.

A special "In Memoriam" is to be held this year in memory of the late

WELL RENDERED FOUNDERS DAY PROGRAM GIVEN

Rendition Thoroughly Enjoyed By Large And Appreciative Audience

The Annual Founders Day program of the Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A. was given on Tuesday afternoon of this week in the Woodrow Wilson School. The Memory Candle was lighted by Dorothy Kanter; the National Candle was lighted by Mrs. Brown; first president of this Unit; the State Candle was lighted by Mr. Crane, superintendent of schools; the Unit Candle was lighted by our president Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. E. I. Bartlett, national chairman for the Home Reading, gave an inspirational talk on the purpose and work of the P. T. A. and the reason for which it was founded.

The following past presidents were introduced: Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Elmers, Mrs. Rickman, Mrs. Page, Mrs. Woodside, Mrs. Hanselman, and our present president, Mrs. Jones.

As this was also the thirteenth birthday of our local Unit, Vice President Edith Barker lighted the candles on our birthday cake and then cut it.

The Unit is assisting the school in buying a radio.

There will be a whist at the home of Mrs. Jones, 368 Vista Grande avenue, on Friday, March 6.

HOME TEAM PLAYS ON SCHOOL FIELD

The Daly City Tanforan baseball club will play the Golden State Meat nine at the Jefferson High School diamond, next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

This will be the first game of the season to be played in Daly City. The last time these two teams met, Golden State defeated our team by a score of 4 to 3, owing to an injury to one of Davies' fingers.

Let's all turn out and do our bit on the bleachers.

BILL POWELL SCORES HIT IN NEW SPY DRAMA

Finds Perfect Vehicle In "Rendezvous," Story Of Love And Intrigue

Spies will be with us so long as nations hold any jealousies toward each other. Therefore, spy dramas are always timely—and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer brings to the screen one of the most gripping stories based on this subject in William Powell's new starring film, "Rendezvous," which opens at the Daly City Theater for two days, Sunday and Monday, February 23 and 24.

"Rendezvous" is the story of America's famous spy-catching bureau during the World War, with the science of the cryptographer playing the principal role.

Powell comes to us this time as an entirely different detective from his roles in the past, and the best he has portrayed so far.

Rosalind Russell, rapidly ascending toward stardom, is seen as Joel, the Secretary's daughter. Binnie Barnes, the English actress, portrays Olivia, a bewitching spy who proves to be the source of most of Powell's troubles.

The second attraction is "A Feather In Her Hat," with Pauline Lord.

As a special attraction "Major Bowes Amateurs" will be shown.

SKIDDING AUTO INFLICTS HURTS AND BRUISES

Family Car Crashes Into Light Pole On Lower Mission Street During Rain

Mrs. Daisy Schulz, 55, wife of C. J. Schulz, 57, 1200 Thirty-sixth avenue San Francisco, is in the Villa Sanatorium undergoing treatment for injuries sustained in an auto accident which occurred Monday afternoon of this week about 2:30 o'clock at a point opposite 7244 Mission street.

Mrs. Schulz was riding with her husband when their car skidded into a light pole. The couple were traveling north on Mission street at the time of the accident.

The injured woman was removed to the hospital in an ambulance. The family car was towed to a nearby garage.

Schulz was uninjured.

"Whereas it has been brought to my attention that an official statement should be made with regard to the duty of every citizen in Daly City to register, and

Whereas under the new registration law every person must so register prior to March 5th in order to qualify to cast his ballot in all of the City, State and National elections to be held this year, therefore

Let is be proclaimed that I, H. H. Smith, Mayor of Daly City, officially call the attention of our citizens to the facts herein set forth and urge them to register at once."

WPA APPLICATIONS OF HIGH SCHOOL ARE APPROVED

Letter Received From Congressman McGrath Asking More Details

Principal James Ferguson has just received from Congressman John J. McGrath a letter, under date of February 14, 1936, in which the Congressman gives assurance of his fullest co-operation in assisting the Jefferson Union High School in getting from the WPA the grant of $69,545 applied for by the High School Board of Trustees.

The Congressman asked Mr. Ferguson for additional information concerning the proposed project of class rooms and gymnasium for the high school, and this was immediately sent in reply.

In conversation with a representative of the Daly City Record, Mr. Ferguson explained that there is a very good chance for the high school to get this free grant of $69,545, provided the district can guarantee its share of the building expense. To provide this guarantee, Mr. Ferguson explained, the Board of High School Trustees called the bond election for $85,000 to be held on March 10.

The project submitted by the High School Board has been approved by every department of the WPA and has been recommended to Washington by the California State Director. It seems, therefore, that the only thing now necessary is for the district to do its part by voting the bonds, and thus raising the money to match the grant asked for from the federal government.

This grant would provide for the building of a swimming pool without

VETS OF FOREIGN WAR TO PARADE AT ANNUAL FETE

(By W. J. Lehigh)

On February 22, Old Glory Post and its Auxiliary will participate in the "Washington Fete" parade. The thought uppermost in the minds of all veterans is that their respective organization will be the winner of the prize offered for the best drill team, etc. Old Glory Post and its degree team, together with tthe Auxiliary Drill Team will be strong contenders for first prize. The Auxiliary drill team, has been practicing diligently. Even Sunday mornings they may be seen going through their drills with the thoroughness of good Marines.

The Highway Safety Drive under way at the present time was highly endorsed by Old Glory and a committee was appointed to represent the Post in this worthwhile and needy safety measure. All civic and improvement clubs should do all they can to make the highways safer for safe drivers.

The V. F. W. are to sponsor an essay on Americanism in the Daly City High Schools. This is a noteworthy anticipation and will soon be a fact, when the appointed committees have their plans in working order.

The Junior Girls Corps had the pleasure of a really nice Valentine Party on February 14, and they enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Valentines and boxes of candy were distributed among the members.

At the evening meeting, the Post and Auxiliary also had a hilarious time passing out valentines.

NEW LOCATION FOR RED CROSS CHAPTER

Walter S. Martin, chairman of the San Mateo County Chapter, American Red Cross, announces that the house and property at 224 Primrose Road, Burlingame, has been purchased by Miss Helen Chesebrough for the use of the chapter.

With the Visiting Nursing Service recently inaugurated by the chapter, larger quarters were needed. If it is found that the Primrose Road location proves to be adequate, Miss Chesebrough intends to transfer the property to the San Mateo County Chapter. In the meantime they will have the use of the house rent free.

RIGHT YOU ARE FRANK - SO SAY MOST OF PEOPLE

The following dispatch was sent from Sacramento over the United Press wires under date of February 16. We believe the majority of our people are in sympathy with the sentiments expressed.

Governor Frank F. Merriam believes that President Roosevelt was "a man raised up by Almighty God to meet the country's present crisis."

In a speech on the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, delivered at the Westminster Presbyterian Church here last night, the governor said:

"History will show that Providence raised the proper man to meet present emergencies and will demonstrate, I think, that the man who now holds the presidency was just the one to meet the situation."

The governor also described Washington and Lincoln as men "ordained to see the country safely through its worst storms."

TANFORAN INFLUX TO BIG MEETING TO BEGIN FRIDAY

Magnet Of Marchbank Handicap Attracts Best Horses In Country Now At Santa Anita.

Thoroughbreds will be galloping in a comparatively short time at the Tanforan track. One week from today (Friday, February 28) strings of high class performers will be admitted to the plant. The racing strip has been put in tip-top condition and it may be anticipated horsemen will be well satisfied with the mile oval, pronounced by experts to be one of the safest and best in the continent.

Trainers are especially interested in the first running of the Marchbank Handicap, an event named in honor of the man who brought racing back to California. The Marchbank is one of a series of stakes to be run at the fast approaching period of sport.

The revised schedule of features is as follows:

Inaugural Handicap, Saturday, March 7, 6 furlongs, $2000 added.

WEDDING BELLS AGAIN!

Rain or shine, Dan Cupid is on the job! The light showers Tuesday of this week did not keep a young bride and groom from climbing one of San Francisco's highest peaks and saying, "I Will." Their names are Arden Maro Kerr and Martha Riedstra. The groom is formerly of Nebraska and the bride is from Ohio. The bride's parents live in Colma.

The wedding took place at straight up noon. From this high point one can see all the ups and downs of nature. The view added to the romantic occasion. All kinds of weather could be seen—sunshine, fog and rain. The angry waves of a peaceful ocean seemed to slash a little harder the shores. A little mist fell and then the sun rays shone through the broken clouds. The couple faced the large cross on Mt. Davidson, which was not a great distance away, while the ceremony was performed by the Reverend J. Merritt Gill, pastor of the Daly City Nazarene Church. Rev. Gill believes if the Cross of Christ and its significance could be kept before all newly weds there would be fewer divorces and more happier homes.

OUR CITY FATHERS MEET BUT RESULTS AS USUAL ARE NIL

Citizens Attend Expecting Transaction Of Business, But Are Disappointed

The City Council of Daly City met at the City Hall in adjourned session (for what reason no one knows) Monday evening. All members were present; also the city clerk.

We are wondering what prompted the meeting—or did it just happen.

After hearing a complaint from a citizen, who said he had put up two separate deposits for water service, and had not had the first one returned, considerable "buck passing" was indulged in an attempt to place the onus on the shoulders of the complaint.

There seemed to be no further comedy in sight—when, behold, the presiding official began to delve into the private affairs of reputable citizens. This, under the guise of discussing the petitions filed to have the recently enacted Civil Service Ordinance placed on the ballot.

He wanted to know this—and he wanted to know that—all of which did not come within the purview of his official position.

Some of these questions were answered by the persons questioned—but as to others the questioner was told that—Well, make your own guess! Just what he should have been told.

He didn't like articles appearing in the local newspaper, and he didn't relish the answers, either. We know them all!

Then this same presiding officer asked the chief of our fire department if all the firemen had not signed a recently issued circular. The chief said all but four had done so. He stated two of these had been absent from the city and two had flatly refused to sign. We still maintain the circular was "purported" to have been signed so far as actual knowledge goes.

The chief of the Fire Department, during this dialogue, came forth with the astounding assertion: "The State Civil Service Statute provides that the City Council MUST pass a Civil Service Ordinance."

Shades of the constitution! Will wonders never cease! However, the chief was politely corrected and "put on the right track."

The chairman (as is termed) then read a long document, a copy of which he said had been sent to all city and county and other political subdivi-

FORMER WATER PAIL AND DIPPER DAYS ARE PAST

New Generations Call For New Methods and Equipment For Education

(By Maude Larue Ives)

The welfare of our boys and girls is of vital interest to every inhabitant of this big, little city of ours, for didn't we prove it when we put over the grammar school bonds? And now we look with pride on the three beautiful and commodious schools, memorials to the progressive spirit of Daly City.

The boys and girls of primary, intermediate and upper grades have been furnished with up to date equipment, and now the next job ahead of us is to look into the needs of our high school pupils.

The mass meeting scheduled for March 3 in the high school, will give all citizens an opportunity to become acquainted with the crowded conditions and lack of equipment now existing in the Jefferson Union High School, which, if not corrected, will seriously handicap the health and training of our young men and women.

"What was good enough for me when I went to school is good enough now, and we didn't have gymnasiums swimming pools and the like," voiced a citizen the other day.

Horse and buggies, my good friend, were the principal vehicles of travel only a few years ago and in many schools a pail of water, through the medium of a dipper, quenched the thirst of many a child. Those earlier day conveniences would hardly fit in with the present day setup of modernized living. So let's go to the meetings—listen with an open mind so that we will be in a position to vote intelligently at the polls on this most important subject, "Enlarging and Modernizing our High School." It will probably be our last chance to receive federal aid. So let's act now:

Mrs. Pontius, who now lives in Los Angeles, tendered her resignition, which was not accepted, and she will continue as District President until the end of the current year. Mrs. Florence Donnelly of Redwood City, vice president, will assume such duties as cannot be handled by Mrs. Pontius on her visits to San Francisco or via mail.

months will be on hand for the first bugle call.

Fans have noted that two of the leading candidates for the honors in the Santa Anita Handicap tomorrow, Top Row and Time Supply, are in the contingent that has been given stable accommodations at Tanforan. Both Top Row and Time Supply are by young stalilons and some students of blood lines ascribe their power out on the race course at least partially to that fact.

Time Maker, sire of Time Supply, was five years old when mated with Surplice, dam of Time Supply, Little Peanuts, sire of Top Row, was eight years old, when Too High, the dam of Top Row, was sent to his court.

MANY NEW AUTOS NOW PURCHASED

Figures just released indicate that the sale of passenger cars in the United States during 1935, rank fourth in the entire history of the automobile industry, according to the manager of the Mission Auto Co. here.

"Registration figures disclose the fact that the American people purchased a total of 2,743,908 passenger cars during the twelve months of 1935," he stated.

"This figure has been exceeded only three times in the history of the automobile business, once in 1926, when sales totaled 3,228,401; in 1928, when 3,139,579 automobiles were sold, and in 1929, when sales totaled 3,880,206.

"This dramatic evidence of the rapidly increasing purchasing power of our people," he said. "Passenger car sales during 1935 increased 45.29 per cent over the total of 1,888,557, registered during the year 1934.

"While these figures cover the entire industry, those of the Chrysler Corporation are even more significant. Chrysler was the only major manufacturer to show an increase in sales during the six-year period between 1929 and 1935. At the close of 1935, their sales had climbed 68 per cent above those of the boom year, 1929."

AN INDIRECT CAUSE

Skidding and tire pressures have a direct relationship. If the pressures are equal in the tires, the braking effect will be unequal.

That's the basis of many a dangerous skid. Realization of this should impel the motor car owner to keep the pressures equal and at the specified level.

Among the most hazardous occupations, not including those involving danger of violent death, is that of carving tombstones and the like, especially by the sandblast method. Infection of the lungs through inhaling stone dust is likely to carry the worker to an early grave. Mortality records show that the average sandblaster is ready for his own tombstone at the age of 45.

Educate Child in Safety; Safe Home Is Important

The modern mother is confronted with a more baffling problem in protecting her children from the dangers of the world than ever before. Children of today face most of the long established dangers such as fire, poisons and stairs, sharp objects and cutting tools, and in addition nearly 25,000,000 automobiles waylay them on streets and highways. It is certain that the improved methods of recording accidents makes the mother more conscious of their appalling extent than ever before.

One of the first principles of child safety, according to Curtis Billings who writes on "Teaching Your Child to Be Safe" for Hygeia, is the establishment of a safe home by the mother. To have a safe home is at least as important as to have a clean home.

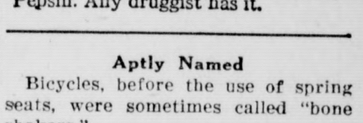
The second fundamental is that safe habits must be painstakingly taught to children. Safe habits cannot be instilled in them by intermittent and impatient scoldings and cross "don'ts," nor are threats of disaster effective in preventing mishaps to children. For instance, children may be taught through actual and repeated demonstrations how to cross a street safely.

DUST STORMS AND DISEASE

Medical science fears disease if dust storms recur. The dust does not carry germs but irritates throat and lungs and allows germs present to cause illness.

NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child



A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

"SMART GUY" AND THE BOOMERANG

A fellow is usually referred to as a "smart guy" when he forms the unfortunate habit of going out of his way to "stick his nose into" other people's business.

A boomerang is a semi-circular affair, which, when started from a given point, usually returns and torments the "starter."

The unfortunate position of the former is accentuated when he assumes dictatorial methods to obtain information which does not concern him in the least, or when he continually "harps" about people "picking on him" when they are only seeking to obtain by entirely legal proceedings something which is their just right.

Unfortunately the "smart guy" does not even stop with these iniquitous and questionable insinuations, but seeks to injure other citizens who refuse to kow-tow and who insist on thinking for themselves.

That's where the boomerang "gets in its work." Whenever such things are resorted to the proposition that is being sought to "be put over" by him as a rule returns to smite the "starter." For the promulgation of any attempt to justify oneself in opposing the will of the common people inevitably results in finding a roosting place on the shoulders of the one who advocates such schemes.

The "smart guy" is usually of the type who "can't take it" when it comes home to him to roost.

Too often in public life we find some one who believes himself to be greater than the mass of the people—and that's where the boomerang again does its darndest! Such a person is generally brought up with a "sharp jerk" and held up to ridicule by the impertinent remarks by which he attempts to belittle men of repute in any walk of life.

Moral: Be careful not to assume that your "brain twist" is of much greater volume that that of your neighbors. They may prove more intelligent than the boomerang thrower when the truth and the real facts are brought to light.

Should anybody still want to know—the editor of The Record KNOWS all the answers.

Prepare yourself! The day of reckoning is at hand! You may be called on any day now to tell who "owns" your business.

The public official or other person who continually whines for sympathy really needs a swift kick—properly placed.

Harmony is very desirable in any community. The way to get harmony is not by dictating arbitrarily, but for all to be willing to concede and consider the rights of others.

THE PUBLIC VOICE

Opinions Of Citizens For Which The Editor Gives No Sponsorship

AN EXPLANATION

The volunteer employes of the city in their attempt to halt the referendum petition stated they were not in politics. A day or two after both our city's "finest" and the firemen were presenting cards to petitioners asking them to sign the card with a request to the city clerk to take their names off the petition. I do not charge intimidation, but am searching for a word to fit this conduct.

The mayor of the city has four votes on the council, his own and that of three others. Mr. Fahey, of course, thinks for himself. This state of affairs gives the mayor all the power of a dictator. Looking up dictators, I find the first Roman dictator. T. Lartins, was appointed in 501 B. C. in an emergency for a term of six months, that being the longest time they were ever appointed for. They were given almost unlimited power, but had no control over public funds. The insignia of the lictors 24 in number, were: first they bore the fasces and secures; second, the curule chair (probably somewhat like the one in our own City Hall). The dictator's power was absolute and there was no appeal against his mandates. He was nearly altogether independent of other authority. The only safe guard against his misconduct was the shortness of the period he remained in office. This was never allowed to exceed six months. They were appointed by the senate, after which they did as they liked. Thus we see the ancient dictator had need of a modern legal training in prestidigitation, his people saw what he did and how he did it, and for how long.

Nowadays mayors are elected for four years, during which time they collect a big body of taxcaters—police, firemen, employes and their relations and friends, totaling about 25 per cent of the voters. If, however, this start in the election race is considered doubtful or insufficient they try for Civil Service. By this means many can be retired on pensions. (at the taxpayers' expenses) and others appointed to fill their places, thus augmenting what is known as a machine vote, insuring their election forever.

The taxpayer and voter can be disgusted beyond the saturation point drip sweat and rush to the polls to protect his interest and afterwards scratch his head in an endeavor to find out how it all happened. He doesn't know he is the victim of the legerdemain of unseen modern dictatorship. There are no books, legal or lay, explanatory of these phenomena; they can only be understood on an empty stomach.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

FIRE PREVENTION

By Chief A. P. Chesney

One case on file tells of a night watchman who started a fire in a factory under his care by smoking while in a bed, that the management had considerately provided for his comfort. He was overcome by smoke from the fire, but a sprinkler head opened and sprayed water on him until he revived.

A certain fire chief once issued a grimly humorous warning to the people of his city who indulged in the dangerous practice of smoking in bed, the placard reading "People who smoke in bed are too green to burn, but their beds are not.

THE DEFECTIVE CHIMNEY

Next in importance as causes of fire loss come Defective Chimneys and Flues with an annual total of a little more than $23,000,000. Then follow Stoves, Furnaces, Boilers and their pipes with about $22,000,000, Spontaneous Combustion, $16,000,000, and Sparks on Roofs with $14,173,000.

The great toll chargeable to chimneys and flues is the result of poor construction. Besides being built solidly from base to cap on a staple foundation laid in the ground, a chimney should be built with a fire clay lining and cleaned of soot at least once a year.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, February 23, on the subject "Mind."

The Golden Text will be: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the holy is understanding" (Prov. 9:10). Bible selections will include the following passage from Ps. 94: 9, 10: "He that planted the ear, shall he not hear? he that formed the eye, shall he not see? He that chastiseth the heathen, shall not he correct? he that teacheth man knowledge, shall not be know?"

Passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy,, will also be included which read as follows: "Mind is God . . . . Intelligence is omniscience, omnipresence, and omnipotence. It is the primal and eternal quality of infinite Mind, of the triune Principle,—Life, Truth, and Love,—named God" (p. 469).

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

(By Rev. Miles Dawson)

When the Jewish male child becomes 13 years of age, he has become a man, and must begin his religious ritual as a man. One of the first practices he must make, is to use his phylacteries, or tephillin as they are called, on week-day mornings during the time of prayer. Matthew makes mention of the "phulakteria" (i. e. a receptacle for safe-keeping). The phylactery is a small square box, made of either parchment or black calf-skin, in which has been deposited slips of parchment or vellum with the following writings of Torah on them, Ex. xiii. 2-10, 11-17, and Duet. vi. 4-9, xi. 13-22.

At what time phylacteries were first worn is hard to say, but Jewish canonical writings concerning them are very old. Two such boxes are required in the Mosaic code, one for the left arm, nearest the heart, and the other for the head. Inside the one for the hand is deposited the parchments with the inspired passages inscribed. Although the hand phylactery has no outward inscription, the head phylactery has a letter "shin" inscribed on the outer side, standing for "Shaddai" ("the Almighty").

The young man is taught to place the tephillin properly upon his head and hand, repeating the following benediction: "Blessed art thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who hast sanctified us with thy commandments, and enjoined us to put on the phylacteries."

This is but one part of the ritual conducted by the young Jewish men, who seek to carry on the religion of their fathers. Like the Pharisees of old, there are still Jews in Poland and Russia who wear the phylacteries during the whole day.

ROOSEVELT WILL LEAD PEOPLE TO TRIUMPH

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Last week we told of the swing among the wage earners of the country to the Roosevelt column. The workers want the chief executive at Washington for another four years to finish his great work; that is certain. One bloc alone is conservatively estimated at 1,500,000 votes; quite a number, we'll say.

We have had too many experiences with oligarchy, both national and state, to take a chance on returning to the rule of finance capitalism so familiar to us. In addition to the workers brain and manual, the farmers, urban liberals, there is a group that has come into prominence in the last decade or two that must be reckoned with. Yes, you have guessed it:

The women.

A keen analysis of present conditions demonstrates there is every reason for the electors of the female sex to support our "fearless leader," as Postmaster General J. A. Farley calls the President.

When we think of women we think of that wonderful human institution, the home, and, as is undeniable, President Roosevelt has been working with might and main to make conditions right for the upbuilding of the home.

As Elizabeth Christman of the Women's Trade Union League recently said, when the Supreme Court declared the NRA illegal the women and children of this country were first to feel the blow. As she puts it:

"The defense of the women was the weakest, therefore they slipped back into the darkness. The codes were giving women, for the first time, a fighting chance for decent hours and pay. Now, chiseling employers are taking advantage of them on every hand."

It has been estimated that at least one third of the people of the United States and Canada are living on a subsistence basis. Subsistence, it is easy enough to see, does not permit of keeping the kind of home every American should have.

As has been said on numerous occasions, the New Deal, with all its faults, was first an effort to regulate labor hours so that more men and women could do less work and yet secure or retain a buying power which would permit them to buy and use more products of this technological age.

Elihu Root and others of the old school may think the people of the country are not capable of governing themselves and need a ruling class, but it is our well-considered opinion the voters at the November election will make the decisive gesture of returning Franklin Roosevelt to office, showing they can rule and are choosing a man they know will do their bidding for the welfare of the whole population and not for a few.

We see absolutely nothing fair or just in an oligarchy. The President has pulled us out of the oligarchial mire and we should not slip back into it.

The battle at the coming election is essentially a struggle between the forces of democracy, as symbolized in the President, and "entrenched greed," as he cogently describes the opposition.

Noah Webster tells us an oligarchy is a form of government in which the supreme power is placed in the hands of a small exclusive class.

That is the kind of government we do not want and must not have, whatever comes to pass.

Paul Douglas, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, has returned after five months studying conditions abroad and is enthusiastic about plans of the federal administration to do more in stimulating housing. The provision of buildings in which people can make homes he found to be one of the principal reasons for the emergence of England from the deepest part of the depression. Homes, as we indicated before, are truly the bulwark of democratic civilization.

To bring an appreciable decrease in unemployment, Professor Douglas states there must be a break in monopoly prices, such as telephone, electricity and gas, steel, building materials and trade marked goods. A conservative estimate of the number of unemployed is 10,000,000.

CALVARY CHURCH SUNDAY SERVICES

At the Calvary Baptist Church, 5724 Mission street, Pastor Miles Dawson will speak at both services Sunday. His 11 o'clock morning theme will be "Athirst for God." His 7:45 evening message will be on "The Eternal Alpha and Omega."

The choir will render an anthem at the morning service, and the young men of the church will conduct a devotional service Sunday evening.

The Calvary Church will also broadcast an afternoon service throught radio station KYA from 4:30 to 5 on Sunday. A men's quartet will sing, and the pastor will speak.

WORTHY OF HIS TITLE

(By Maude Larue Ives)

George Washington was one of the most silent men in history. From early youth he was unusually reserved and self-restrained.

In reality, however, Washington was a man of deep feelings and affections. His letters show him capable of fiery rebuke, never afraid to take his stand on the right side, and yet gentle and loving to wife, mother, nieces and nephews who depended on his care. In spite of the seriousness of life in the early history of this republic, he could appreciate a humorous story and has been known to roll on the grass in a gale of laughter, and during his years of public life his heart was always at home on the plantation. Washington was extremely human, not a saint to be worshiped by the American people, for he lived and loved even as we do.

Washington's father died when his son was still a lad of eleven, not so long after the cherry tree episode. Soon young George became relf-reliant and early learned to help caring for his mother, brothers and sisters, who were left in somewhat straightened circumstances.

After a special mathematical course and some general schooling our hero, at sixteen, began life in the business world as a surveyor and prospered. On account of previous surveying expeditions into the Shenandoah Valley and beyond he was the one selected as capable to warn the French, in 1753, to give up any attempt to seize the Forks of the Ohio. Later, his coolness and bravery while in service under General Braddock saved the expedition to Great Meadows from utter destruction. At the close of the French and Indian War he had won the foremost place among Colonial officers.

During this time, in 1759, Washington had married Martha Dandridge, widow of Daniel Parke Custis. The death of a brother and niece and his marriage made him one of the wealthiest men in the Colonies. How pleasant now to settle down at Mount Vernon to the attractive life of a Virginia planter. Great people never stagnate, and soon he became a member of the House of Burgesses until, when the quarrel with the mother country broke out, he gave his quiet earnest support to the radical party in the Legislature and the Continental Congress. He was appointed commander in chief of the army and, in 1775, became the leading figure of the Revolution.

Washington, unlike Jefferson, cannot be considered a master of English. However, he wrote as he thought, slowly and patiently. He never indulged in plays of fancy or extremely personal touches, but in all his writings his unselfish devotion to his country, his sincere sense of duty and his honesty are plainly evident. His is an outstanding type of character worthy of the title, "The Father of His Country."

"I may if you don't fetch the blanket," he said. "A fire on the shore means nothing of itself. Just an Indian camp—John Buck and his squaw. We'll have to signal."

The word sent her bounding up the bank. She came flying back with the blanket. Garth ordered her to hold one corner. He took another. They stood in front of the fire, with the big blanket stretched between them. Mr. Ramill called irritably from the top of the bank. What did they mean, wakening him and taking away his bedding? Lilith cried out the glad news. Garth gave her a curt order to pay attention. At his commands, she began to stoop and rise in unison with him, lowering the blanket to the sand and jerking it up again in front of the fire, at irregular intervals.

After some time he ordered a halt, with the blanket on the ground. He added an explanation: "Those were dots and dashes. We've given the SOS—and my name. They may not have made it out. That light is nearer, but it has not turned. Ready now. We'll repeat."

He went through another series of long and short liftings of the blanket. They again paused with the blanket down. Garth stepped out of the fire glow to peer over the water. Lilith followed.

Above the low-hung star another star flashed on and off. Across the silent, glimmering flood of the river came the hoarse blasts of a steamer's whistle, muffled by distance yet unmistakable.

"All right, Miss Ramill," Garth said. "Tell your maid to pack your luggage."

She asked in a low voice: "Haven't I tried to play up? Is it sporting of you to mock me?"

Her face was shadowed. He could not see the look that went with the questions. After a moment, he answered soberly: "It is not, and you have. Permit me to apologize."

"Is that all?"

"What else?" he replied. "You are of course relieved and pleased to be rid of a man you so thoroughly hate. You may rest assured I will not intrude, once you're aboard ship."

"Yes," she murmured, "when Dad and I no longer have any need of you to—"

Her father came staggering down the bank to thrust in between them. "I say, Garth!—don't lie. Is it true the steamer is putting in for us?"

* * * * * * *

Doubtful of a safe night landing at this unused beach, the steamer captain lay off-shore and sent in a canoe. Garth steadied Mr. Ramill into the birchbark. At the same time Lilith stepped in ahead of her father. She repeated the maneuver when the two Indian paddlers drove the canoe out alongside the little river steamer.

Garth saw no more of the girl until after the steamer tied up at Fort Simpson, the trading post at the mouth of the Liard river. Taken into a stateroom by the wife of a missionary from Fort Norman, she remained in complete seclusion.

Her father kept almost equally close in the skipper's own room. The canny Scot had welcomed the American millionaire to his bunk—for a consideration. The cabin was jammed with fur traders and Fort Norman oil-field officials, who were going outside for the winter. Garth messed and berthed forward with the crew. He kept to his worn buckskins. But a sleet-squall ended the pest of flies and mosquitoes. He was able to shave and cleanse his skin of dope, yet enjoy the fresh air on the unscreened deck.

When the building-topped bluff of Fort Simpson was sighted in the distance, Mr. Ramill left the cabin and came forward. Though not yet fully recovered from his wound, he walked with the springy step of a lean-waisted middle-aged gentleman in healthy training. After the snagged and stained leather suit, the clothes loaned him by the skipper looked startlingly respectable. The same was true of his clean-shaven dope-free skin.

He stopped before Garth, bland-faced, shrewd-eyed.

"I've just heard, my boy, that you think of stopping off at this post. I trust it's not on account of any feeling against me or my daughter. You can't blame her for a bit of resentment. She's a woman, and you certainly put her through the mill. As for myself, I called it quits when you pulled me out of the hole this last time. What d'you say?"

He tossed his half-smoked cheap cigar outboard and held out his once-flabby now firm-muscled hand. Garth gave it a hearty grip.

"All accounts squared, sir, and no hard feelings against either of you. Miss Ramill proved herself far more plucky and sporting than could have been expected. I wish you both bon voyage."

"But for you to be leaving the boat, my boy! There's no need of it. I can arrange for you to get into the cabin. In fact, I'd like the opportunity to talk over matters. We might still get together on those terms you offered."

"We might," Garth agreed; but then his smile hardened. "That side of the matter will have to wait. I shall first settle with your friend Huxby."

The millionaire frowned.

"Don't call that murderous hound a friend of mine. His shooting you is understandable. My wounding was of course what he claimed—sheer accident. But for the scoundrel to abandon a helpless girl to starvation! If he was too cowardly to dare her frenzied threats and forcibly take her and me with him in the canoe, he could at least have had the plane come for us."

"If you care for my guess," Garth said, "he was more interested in your daughter as an heiress than as a woman."

"No guess about it. A coldblooded rascal who would have murdered you for your claim! I'll run him down and make him pay in full for deserting Lilith and me, if it costs a million."

"His punishment will cost you nothing, Mr. Ramill. He has been trapped by his own greed."

"Trapped?"

"Before we came aboard, word was received by radio that a man named Huxby had recorded a platinum placer claim at Fort Smith; that he had bought a large airplane, and flown north with three miners."

Mr. Ramill looked his doubts. "I've heard nothing of it."

"Because I thought best for you not to."

"You! Do you mean to tell me that everyone on this steamer kept mum because you, a mere prospector—" The millionaire paused. "Have I been blind? You are not a common prospector. There's something about you . . . in spite of your vagabonding about this north country!"

Garth said: "We are talking about Huxby. I've radioed for a Northwest policeman to meet me at Simpson with a plane. The charges are robbery and assault to murder."

"Radioed? The skipper told me his transmitter was out of order."

"By my request, sir. I thought it as well to keep you out of the affair. It is possible Miss Ramill may have recovered from her resentment against him. I'll ask you to pardon my going to see if there are any more reports on Huxby's movements."

Though by no means curt, the dismissal was abrupt. Mr. Ramill stood pondering for several moments before he returned to the cabin and went to the door of the stateroom that the Fort Norman missionary's wife had shared with Lilith.

Some time before the steamer nosed in to the landing, Garth made out that the pontooned plane afloat at the waterfront was too small to be one of the regular Bellanca transports. It had no cabin, and only three seats. Foremost of the passengers ashore, he at once climbed the bluff to the post.

As he expected, a red-coated constable of the Northwest police was lounging in the old trading post storeroom with one of the Airways pilots. The latter sprang to meet him.

"Hullo, 'Lan—you d—n' lame duck! Helluva note, you squattering in the wet all these months. Could've cruised your frozen hell a hundred times in any old crate."

Garth gripped hands with him. "'Lo, Kiwi! I didn't happen to be after airpockets. There are things you have to rub your nose against to see."

"And smell! I've heard of your Eskimo igloos. Count me out—completely outside. Indian huts are enough and to spare."

Garth sobered to business. "What news?"

"Your man set his bus down here three days ago. Hopped off PDQ, with all she could heave up under—gas and oil."

The constable had stood at attention. He met Garth's glance with a salute. "All ready, sir."

"Good work, Dillon. One question—those three miners?"

"Broke prospectors, sir. Records, far as known, not savory. But none of the bunch is wanted, and they're not newcomers from across the border. They'll know enough not to interfere when I take my prisoner."

The post factor came hastening in to shake hands. "Pardon my absence, Mr. Garth. Was up the Liard. It's a great pleasure to have you stop off with us. If you plan to take in dogs, I have a picked team that I'd be honored—"

"Thank you, no," Garth cut in. "But I would like a rifle, rabbit undersuit, winter moccasins, gloves, and three pairs of webs."

He turned to the pilot. "Season more advanced up there. Blizzards off the Selwyns; the lake probably starting to freeze. Enough stream-flow, though, to keep a clear runway for your pontoons, if we don't loiter all week."

He went into a bunkroom to put on the rabbit-fur suit under his buckskins. When he came out, a girl in a plain, ill-fitting gown stood talking to the pilot. The pilot glanced towards him. The girl turned quickly. He found himself face to face with Lilith Ramill.

Yet it was not the grease-and-pitch marked face of his canoe companion. Nor was it that deep-lined rouged and powdered face with scarlet-smeared lips that had sneered at him on Tobin's wharf. It was a face smooth and firm, vivid with life and vitality. Only the blue eyes were hard.

"Alan Garth," she said, "I've learned all about it. You're going back there—after him!"

"Sorry, Miss Ramill. It's not revenge, if that's what you think. I tried to spare you. But, if you must have it, he is a thief."

The girl's eyes flashed. "Worse! He's a cowardly murderer. That is why I too am going to see him taken prisoner."

"You?"

"Yes. I am going to see him cringe, the sneaky beast! Do you think I've forgotten how he crept up and shot you when you weren't looking? And what if he didn't intend to shoot Dad? He left him to die. If that's not enough, must I tell you how he taunted me? He jeered that I'd be starved into welcoming him by the time he came back for me."

"Yet that's no reason why you—"

"It is! You shan't go without me. If you refuse, there's another plane just come. I'll make Dad charter it for me. I'll have the pilot tag after you!"

Garth studied her gravely. She stared back at him, hotly defiant. He pretended to accept her reasons for wanting to go:

"You most certainly are a good hater, Miss Ramill. One thing, though. The valley is about to freeze up. It will not be the summer paradize we left. We may land in a blizzard."

She looked around the store. "Where are those Eskimo suits you told me about?"

At that he smiled a bit grimly. "This is Indian country. You shall have rabbit and buckskins." He turned to the factor: "Add the lady's outfit to my account." To the pilot: "Kiwi, this is where you are to fit your name. You're going to be a wingless ground bird."

"Oh, have a heart, 'Lan!"

"Three is a crowd, and she is it. Ask her father."

For the first time the girl betrayed a trace of doubt. "But we'll have to have a pilot."

Kiwi stared, then grinned at the joke. "Lady, what you don't know about our boy friend would appear to be quite a considerable.—All right, you lame duck, go hog the joystick. Do I stay planted or take the watercraft?"

"Steamer. Southbound planes are apt to be overcrowded, with everyone coming out," Garth replied. "Now, Miss Ramill, we'll go down and get your father's visa on your passport."

Constable Dillon put in a word: "It's not on the cards, sir, to take along a young lady. If this Huxby tries to act up—"

"He's your meat, Dillon. I'll stand responsible for Miss Ramill."

Down at the waterfront, Garth went over the plane with his pilot friend. There was a full load of gasoline and a change of oil. To the week's supply of provisions, he added the three pairs of snowshoes and the new rifle. With the rifle came enough cartridges to refill the belt that still held his knife and belt-ax.

Lilith had gone aboard the steamer. She returned with her father. He looked worried. She had put on her Indian-woman costume—buckskins, moccasins, fur cap and gloves. The millionaire chose to lay the blame on Garth.

"Have you gone insane? No more than get her out of that muskeg hell, and you want to drag her back to your infernal hole in desolation!"

"The lady's choice, not mine."

"Well, you're taking her."

"How can I help it, sir? You are her father. Why not assert your paternal authority?"

Lilith brushed aside their trifling. "Which is my seat?"

"The rear.—Close her in, Kiwi."

She turned to fling her arms around her father and kiss him. It was the only caress Garth had ever seen her give anyone.

As he put on his pilot friend's helmet and goggles, the constable mounted to the middle cockpit. Kiwi handed the girl into the rear one. He drew over her head the shatterless glass cowl that almost covered the opening.

Garth spoke a last word to her anxious father: "In all probability, sir, we'll overtake you within three or four days. May, however, have to lay over, in case of storm. If fog or snow makes us miss you on your way out, we'll probably meet at Fort McMurray."

Mr. Ramill came close. "Garth, there's something I can't understand. This crazy notion of Lilith's, I mean. It's not mere willfulness. She has something in mind."

"Wants to see the handcuffs slipped on Huxby," Garth replied. "Can you blame her? Mangled vanity. Had believed he loved her for herself at least as much as for her inheritance. 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned'—all that, you know."

"Not all, Garth—no! There's something else. I can't make her out. Something different about her."

"Perhaps she'll tell you when we come out. I'll of course do what I can for her."

Garth shook hands, and swung aboard the small craft. At a sign from him, the displaced pilot gave the propeller a spin. The plane swung around, to taxi downstream.

There was no hurry. Had Huxby schemed to fly into the valley merely to stake the placer in his own name and hop out again, he would not have taken the three miners. He undoubtedly had planned to do his season's assessment work. That would mean a shaft sunk to bedrock, so that he could bring out a load of the platinum-gold alloy.

Midway of the down river flight, the three-seater ran into a sleet squall. Garth dropped to the water and tied up under the lee of a spruce-black point. When Lilith demanded to know the cause of the delay, he explained how sleet may put a plane into a spin by freezing on the wings.

The squall blew over, leaving everything sheeted with ice. Garth and Constable Dillon knocked clear the front edge of the wings. Another hop brought the party to the emergency refueling post, shortly before sundown.

This time Lilith Ramill did not refuse Tobin's crude hospitality. She troubled the old sourdough far more by insisting upon watching his preparation of supper and breakfast.

He could not at first believe she was the painted lady who had scoffed at his "garbage." She not only refrained from scoffing, she ate his bacon and porridge as heartily as Garth and the policeman.

The moosehide canoe lay upturned on the bank beside Garth's old birchbark. Tobin had at once told Huxby's story. According to the engineer, the lady and her father were still marooned in the mountains. He had come out with Garth to fetch a plane for them. But Garth had been killed by a wounded she-grizzly.

Gypsy Race Much Mixed; Fourteen Dialects Used

The gypsy race is now a very much mixed one, with elements of the blood of all of the countries in which they have resided; and gypsies from one part of the world may present characteristics and appearances quite different from those of another part, notes a correspondent in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The English word gypsy reflects the old belief of many countries that the gypsies were Egyptians. In other countries they were called Tartars. The old agreement of the traditions concerning them was that they had come to Europe out of the east.

Modern inquiry has revealed a good deal of their true history, however, and has established that the race is originally from northwestern India. Bands of the inhabitants of this region were driven away from their homes and set wandering by hordes of northern invaders which swept down upon them in the Ninth century.

These forbears of the modern gypsy moved into Kabulistan and Persia, and ultimately filtered through Syria into Egypt and northern Africa and through Turkey into Europe. There are now 14 or more distinct dialects of their language in European countries—indicating their widespread distribution.

Languages and Tongues

Language is a term that is applicable to any mode of conveying ideas, whether by speech, writing, hieroglyphics or a system of gestures or pantomime. Even the deaf have several languages, but cannot be properly said to have "tongues." Tongue is an English term for the spoken language of a particular people, as, the French tongue, the German tongue, and so on. Meillet and Cohn in "The Languages of the World" index 6,760 named tongues and systems of writings. That work classifies speech as of (1) country (2) town, (3) village, (4) island, (5) river, (6) tribe. Dialects are included.

CURRAN THEATER PRESENTS STAR IN OLD PLAY

Nazimova Portrays Leading Role In Ibsen Masterpiece

One of the most sensational successes in theatrical annals of this generation will be available to playgoers of San Francisco when Mme. Nazimova arrives at the Curran Theater, Monday, February 24, in Henrik Ibsen's masterpiece "Ghosts," which scored such a phenomenal success at the Empire Theater in New York. The play was presented for an engagement limited to two weeks, but the ovation accorded Nazimova on the opening night, and the popularity of the play despite the fact that it was written fifty years ago, made it necessary to extend the run.

An ovation such as is rare in any theater found the audience at the New York premiere cheering and applauding and refusing to leave the theater before the curtain had been raised in tribute twenty-eight times. The manager of the theater admitted that, not since Sarah Bernhardt had played there, had there been so many curtain calls and so much genuine applause. Critics raved, Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times saying "great is a word for sparing use, but there is no other way to characterize a transcendent performance. Nazimova has imparted to 'Ghosts' the aura of inspired acting." William Lyon Phelps declared it to be the best production of "Ghosts" he had ever seen, "incomparably better than Duse in this role."

A cast worthy of Mme. Nazimova's brilliant acting has been assembled for the production and continues with her on this coast-to-coast tour. It includes McKay Morris, Harry Ellerbe, Beatrice de Neergaard and Raymond O'Brien. Stewart Chaney has designed the setting and Mme. Nazimova herself staged the play with a talented touch that made it, as Robert Garland of the New York World-Telegram said, "no longer a classic. It is a play, and a four-starred one."

The run at the Curran is limited to two weeks only. There will be five bargain matinees, the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees, and a special matinee on Thursday, March 5.

"The Old Maid," with Judith Andersen and Helen Menken, ends Saturday, February 22.

A supper honoring Miss Eleanor Benedetti's ninth birthday was given by the young lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Benedetti, Monday of this week, at the family home on Clara street. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. H. Simond and Louise and Dolly Simond.

MINING NOTES OF VARIOUS SECTIONS

Swan Edlund, who owns 320 acres of land at Wasilla, says the value of his land has been greatly increased by the coming of the Matanuska colonists. He thinks the colonists are a fine lot of people, glad they are being so well housed, and happy to think that roads in the district have already been improved. He does not be grudge them the benefits they have received for he believes everything done for them will increase the prosperity of the entire region. Mining in the district has seen quite a boom and everywhere there are promises of bigger things for 1936!

Total value of purchases by the mining industry of Canada during the last year was $76,000,000. Ontario led with an expenditure of $35,000,000 and British Columbia was second with $17,500,000, according to an official statement from Ottawa.

Lee Howard, operator of the Salt Chuck mine at the head of Kasaan Bay, was a recent caller in Ketchikan, planning to return to the mine after completing business there. Working with a crew of eight men the property, which is a palladium producer—the only one in Alaska—is being worked steadily and to advantage, he reports. Work will continue throughout the winter. A year ago operations were confined to working over tailings from which palladium had been extracted for their gold content but at the present time actual mining is under way, producing gold as well as the rarer mineral.

The Island Mountain mines, Cariboo District, B. C., experienced one of the best months in its history in November, when production was 1630 ounces of gold, worth $57,055, derived from 3097 tons, averaging $18.42 a ton.

This compares with $56,500 in October, recovered from 1615 ounces, derived from 2927 tons milled, with an average gold content of .552 ounces, or $19.30 per ton, Sidney Norman reports. The total recovery for the 13 months since the mill was started in November, 1934, has been $611,643, and for the first 11 months of this year, $551,968.

According to statement recently issued by Arthur Lakes, director and consulting engineer of Wesko Mines, reasonably assured ore exposed at Centre Star mine, Ymir district, during the past ten months, consists of 62,000 tons, with gross value of $897,000.

additional expense to the taxpayers of the district.

The total cost for the proposed gymnasium and class rooms is $85,000 and is to be paid by 20 year bonds. The increase in tax rate will be approximately 30 cents on $500 assessed valuation.

It is asked of the citizens that they do not confuse the Jefferson School District with the Jefferson Union High School District. The former includes the grammar schools only and is entirely separate and distinct from the high school district.

The community is badly in need of a recreational center for use of the citizens during evenings. A gymnasium would satisfy this need.

At present a temporary cafeteria is provided by using a class room and corridors for that purpose. When a gymnasium is built, the present girls shower room will be converted into a kitchen and the basement senior room will be used for a permanent cafeteria for the students.

The request for a gymnasium is not an unusual or unjustified one, for the Jefferson Union High School is the only high school in the county without at least one gymnasium.

sion employes. This was stated to be a request to such employes to circulate petitions to have placed on the ballot for decission or disapproval by the electors a constitutional amendment seeking to make compulsory establishment of Civil Service for employes of all counties, municipalities and other political subdivisions.

The reader of this document questioned Councilman Fahey whether, in view of the latter's negative vote on the Civil Service Ordinance, he would sign such a petition.

The reply was promptly forthcoming: "Yes, because it provides it shall be submitted to a vote of the people, and that is all I want done with the city ordinance."

Thus ended a fruitful (?) session of the Daly City Council.

Wonder how it feels to be end man in a minstrel show!

LEGION AUXILIARY COUNTY COUNCIL MEETING

The regular meeting of the San Mateo County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary was held in Bayshore Fire Hall, Friday evening of last week. Bayshore Unit was hostess. The attendance was small on account of the rain, but the meeting was very interesting. Four candidates were initiated for Bayshore Unit by members of the drill team. After the business session the hostess Unit served delicious refreshments.

As the office of marshal has been vacated, there will be an election for that officer at the next regular meeting, which will be held in San Bruno Legion Club House on March 19. Delegates please take notice of this election.

The drill team is hard at work in preparing for the parade and pageant to be held in San Francisco next Saturday, Washington's birthday. The drill team contest will be held during the parade.
